Art Unit: 3636

Claims 1-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

In claims 1 and 11, the description of the flaps as having "first side, a second side, a front side, a back side and a top edge and bottom edge" is confusing and unclear, as the difference between the first and second sides, and the front and back sides is not evident. If it is the intent to recite the side edges, then the terms "right and left edges", or the like, should be utilized.

Claims 2 and 12, in reciting a conduit, appear redundant, as claims 1 and 11 already recite openings "for providing a conduit". Different terminology should be utilized if the conduit in claims 2 and 12 is distinct from that in claims 1 and 11.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-4, 6-14, and 16-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over DiTommaso in view of Yoshida et al.

DiTommaso (figure 4) discloses a chair device for bathing in which a seat is slidably attached to a base member, a back is adjustably attached to the base member (fig. 9), and adjustable legs are provided. While the chair device of

Art Unit: 3636

DiTommaso does not have flaps and a conduit extending therethrough, the patent to Yoshida et al (fig. 11) teaches the provision of flaps 47 that are pivotally attached to the sides of a backrest of a bathing device, and which include conduits and openings therein to allow water to spray over an occupant. In view of this suggestion, to have modified the chair device of DiTommaso by providing flaps on the sides of the backrest and forming conduits therein to allow spraying onto an occupant, would have been well within the level of skill in the art, as such a modification would allow an occupant to bathe without leaving the chair.

Note that the use of holes and a fastening means for adjusting the backrest would have been obvious, as such is conventional and well known in the art.

Yoshida teaches the use of a valve 71.

Claims 5 and 15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over DiTommaso in view of Yoshida et al, as applied to the claims above, and further in view of Segar.

To have provided the chair of DiTommaso and Yoshida et al with a shower head, for better water coverage, would have been an obvious modification to one with ordinary skill in the art, as such is shown to be well known in the art by Segar (fig. 1).

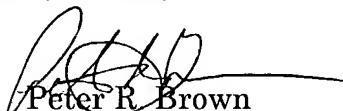

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Gellmann, Sellars, Cheng, Colman, and Gallo show various features of the invention.
